CATALOG DESCRIPTION: TREATING ADDICTIONS IN MCFT

Family Systems view of the development and maintenance of substance abusing patterns for family therapists and other health practitioners. This course will examine the contributions made to the understanding and treatment of substance abuse by family researchers, theorists, and clinicians; and will consider clinical intervention methods of substance abuse with attention to the treatment of adolescents, couples and families.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Societal perspectives on addiction are slow to change, but it is generally understood that it is both a destructive force to individuals, families, communities, societies and nations. While traditional practices in addiction counseling have focused on the individuals, a wide variety of research supports the idea that family based treatment is both effective and necessary. This course will provide an opportunity to focus with specificity on the issues related to addiction and how they affect a family unit as well as consideration of the systemic lens as a perspective. The discussions will center on the use of self as clinician to invite the afflicted client(s) into a productive, collaborative engagement, aimed at eliminating clinician bias and distancing, providing opportunities for growth and healing for all parties.

By the end of this semester, the students will be able to:

1. Have a general understanding on various types of addictive behaviors (CC 2.1.5; KS 42)
2. Know the historical development of a paradigm shift in addiction treatment, which is viewing addiction through a systemic lens (unlike understanding addiction as an intra-psycho process), which includes a broader understanding of the contribution of interpersonal and contextual factors to addictive behaviors
3. Understand the historical development of substance addiction treatment programs, and how the current practices are shaped and influenced by the past (KS 44; CC 3.1.4)
4. Understand addictions from various predominant theoretical models including a bio-psycho-social spiritual systemic lens (CC 2.3.7)
5. Understand various bio-psycho-social factors, including neurological and genetic processes as contributing factors in addictive behaviors
6. Understand how substance addiction affects couple and family relationships and various roles and functions within those relational systems (KS 42, 43)
7. Know how to assess and develop interventions for individuals and families that are affected by substance addiction (CC 2.1.5, 2.3.5)
8. Understand the correlation that exists between substance addiction and various psychiatric disorders (co-occurring disorders) (CC 2.1.3)
9. Learn the historical antecedents & contributing factors supporting the development of evidence-based approaches to treating addiction in families (KS 44)

10. Become aware of effective family-based treatment models for substance abuse & addiction
11. Understand multicultural & social justice issues relative to successful treatment of addiction (PM)

PARTICIPATION IN THE LEARNING COMMUNITY

Participants are required to attend and actively involved in all scheduled class meetings. This includes being on time, being prepared, and engaging with colleagues as fellow professionals. Becoming a therapist involves looking closely at ourselves, our values, beliefs, and biases. This can be a very personal, and sometimes emotional process. Treating colleagues with respect, listening deeply to their experiences, and being open to diverse world views may encourage a collaborative milieu of care in which we can all challenge ourselves and each other, and to critically examine and develop our skills and perspectives. In order to prepare for each class, students should carefully read and study all assigned materials to be ready to discuss, debate, apply the content of readings, and actively engage in role- playing activities. Class discussion and interaction with colleagues are fundamental to the process of learning to be a therapist and all sessions include necessary information related to substance addiction treatment. Therefore, if you must miss a class, fellow students and the instructor may ask you to contribute to the learning community in another way. According to the Lewis & Clark Counseling Psychology attendance policy (see below), missed class periods may result in lowered final grades and students who miss two class periods may be failed in this course.

CPSY DEPARTMENTAL ATTENDANCE POLICY

Class attendance is expected and required. Any missed class time will be made up by completing extra assignments designated by the instructor. Missing more than ten percent of class time may result in failure to complete the class. This would be 3.0 hours for a 30 hour class (2 credits). In case of extreme hardship and also at the discretion of the instructor, a grade of incomplete may be given for an assignment or the entire course. In such cases, the work to be submitted in order to remove the incomplete must be documented appropriately and stated deadlines met. Students are expected to be on time to class and tardiness may be seen as an absence that requires make-up work.

EMAIL POLICY

I maintain a 48-hour response policy for all email communications not including weekends. If you receive an email from me during the weekend, it is the exception and not the rule. You are free to email me at any time and I will do my best to get back to you as my schedule allows. Please do me the courtesy of respecting my time and schedule and I will do the same with yours. If you have a question, by all means ask. For my cell phone, I would ask that you only contact me in emergency situations or when you need an immediate response. A question on homework or an assignment is not typically an emergency. If you are missing class for some reason, I would generally prefer to be notified via email. Please respect my time outside of class as you would like your own to be respected; I will not typically answer calls after 10 PM in the evening.

SPECIAL ASSISTANCE

If you need course adaptations or accommodations because of a disability and/or you have emergency medical information to share please make an appointment with the instructor as soon as possible.

NON-DISCRIMINATION POLICY

Lewis & Clark College adheres to a nondiscriminatory policy with respect to employment, enrollment, and program. The College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, creed, religion, sex, national origin, age, handicap or disability, sexual orientation, or marital status and has a firm commitment to promote the letter and spirit of all equal opportunity and civil rights laws.

SPECIAL NEEDS/ACCOMMODATIONS

Please see the instructor individually at the beginning of the semester if you require any special accommodations as a result of a documented disability (from Lewis & Clark College).

CONFIDENTIALITY

Because of the nature of classroom work and group dynamics it is expected that personal information shared by students will be kept in confidence. Students are not required to share personal information as part of the classroom dynamics, or as a requirement for any evaluation or for grading purposes. Students are asked to be intentional about what they choose to share with other students in the class during classroom-activities. Part of this course involves discussion related to family legacy and history. Other than some demographic information, please share in class to your comfort level and respect what your peers put forth.

LAPTOPS, TABLETS, PHONES AND OTHER ELECTRONIC DEVICES

Laptops or other personal computing devices may be used to take notes or to assist in classroom discussion. Cell/mobile phones must be silenced. Text messaging and non-class related web browsing via electronic media is not allowed during class time. If there is an emergency you may exit the class to use your cell.

EVALUATING COURSE PARTICIPATION & GRADING

When at all possible, please send me papers and assignments via email. Your successful course participation and completion will be evaluated based on the following modes of assessment:

1. Completion of all required readings and active participation in class discussions and Moodle (30 points).

All assigned readings must be completed in advance of the class in which they are to be discussed. That is, every student is responsible for coming to class prepared to participate in a meaningful discussion. Classroom discussions and role plays are opportunities to bring up questions about the assigned reading, further your understanding of the concepts under study, and integrate course material into your clinical practice. In addition to the textbook that is required for this course, there are additional readings that also are required. This class also utilizes Moodle as a forum for discussion of the readings and posting new material that may be of interest to other students or related topics. It is an expectation that you log into Moodle weekly and follow along with class discussions and updates.

2. Legacies Paper (50 points)

Providing counseling to clients integrates our education, histories and emotional wounds. We bring what we believe about families and relationships into session with us and a lack of critical examination can cause us to be judgmental, compromised or disingenuous. As the term progresses, I will ask you to think about how your family has informed your practice of therapy or your expectations in working with families. Additional information about this assignment will be posted on May 19th, via Moodle. A 4-5 page reflection paper will be due on June 16th. Students will share their family legacy information in class and to their comfort level.

3. Group presentations— presenting the model, case description, clinical assessment & treatment plan (50 points)

The course participants will form a group of three-four during the second session (i.e., on May 19th), and will start working together on a given evidence-based model (see the list below) of substance abuse and addiction treatment:

- Brief Strategic Family Therapy (BSFT)
- Behavioral Couples Therapy (BCT)
- Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT)
- Contingency Management Interventions
- Dialectical Behavior Therapy (DBT)
- Functional Family Therapy (FFT)
- Minnesota Model (MM)
- Motivational Enhancement Therapy (MET)
- Multidimensional Family Therapy (MDFT)
- Multisystemic Therapy (MST)

Each group will let the instructor know (via e-mail for the documentation purpose) the topic of their research presentation either before or on the second day of the class (i.e., on May 19th). On the assigned date and time, the group members will present their research in class. For any change in topic, you need to be authorized by the instructor.

Please remember that your research presentation is to a scholarly and professional community, and therefore, will have the following components:

- A comprehensive description about the treatment model: proponents of the model; major theoretical orientations used in the model; key ideas in the model; a personal critique of the model (i.e., both strengths and limitations) and critical reflection on the chosen model's fit with the System's Theory; your thoughts/suggestions to improve the model to work with a systemic perspective. For instance, CBT is traditionally designed to work with individuals. Can you think and propose a way to expand certain components of this to work with families and couples? In other words, what you are challenged to do is to learn deeply about the model, and to think critically about it with a view to use it in couple/family/relational systems. This will be your critical contribution;
- Your group presentation will last 30 minutes, and will be followed by a ten-minute question and answer session. After your presentation, the instructor will give you feedback on your presentation and you will include the suggestions in your final paper;

Each presentation needs to be based on a solid literature review from professional journals relevant to the topic;

- Since this is a group project, make sure that your group's work is distributed fairly to each member of the group. As part of your final paper, please include a paragraph indicating what each member's contribution was to the group project. Again, this is to ensure fairness in your group work;
- Although it is not necessary, usually the use of multi-stimuli (media and audio-video visual aids) may enhance research presentations. If you are using visuals, it will be the presenters' responsibility to get equipment ready for the presentation and start the presentation at the designated time.

Before the group presentation on the assigned day, each presenting group is expected to give the instructor an outline of the content and bibliography from which the presentation originated. This will facilitate the evaluation process of the presentation.

In the course of the presentation, the presenters may choose to distribute relevant materials to the class in order to enhance the effectiveness of the delivery of the assigned topic. Of course, this is optional. Since this is a very time-consuming research project, please make sure that you get organized in your group and start preparing as soon as you can.

4. Final paper (50 points)

Your final group project paper will have all those components described above (#3); and a single spaced page (by each member within the group) reflection on your individual experience and the lessons learned through this exercise in the course of the semester.

Your final paper should be professionally written, double spaced, 12 pt font, organized into sections with appropriate headings, and referenced according to APA 6 guidelines. This group paper will be graded for thorough consideration of all areas of the paper, clarity and organization of ideas, use of extensive literature, critical thinking, and writing and referencing according to APA 6. Late papers will receive lower grades.

FINAL PAPER Due: Last Day of the Class (July 14th, 2015)

The final paper will be evaluated based on the following criteria:

Content 70%

Clarity and organization of ideas 10%

Use of pertinent literature 10%

Writing and referencing according to APA 6 style 10%

FINAL GRADING

A = 93-100	A- = 90-92	B+ = 88-89	B = 83-87
B- = 80-82	C+ = 78-79	C = 73-77	C- = 70-72
