

WRITING YOUR WAY

Welcome, Young Writers, incoming grades 6-9! Join us for an exciting time of writing, talking, reading—and more writing!

In these workshops students will turn their notebooks to a new page. They will locate the stories they carry, take risks in writing, learn to turn memory into fiction, fiction into poetry. These workshops will emphasize narrative and poetry writing.

Participants will write to a wide variety of prompts while honing skills through craft lessons that build both language dexterity and knowledge of genres.

INSTRUCTORS

Grades 6-7: Charles Sanderson and Kristen McMurtry are Oregon Writing Project coaches. Charles has taught at St. Helens and Ockley Green MS in Portland, and Kristen teaches at Cedar Park MS in Beaverton. Charles and Kristen are founding members of SlamBoo, a cross-cultural poetry organization bringing rural, urban and suburban students together to create and perform.

Grades 8-9: Donald Rose, an Oregon Writing Project coach who has also served PPS as a district middle school coach, has taught middle school writing and social studies at Robert Gray, Jackson, and Beaumont schools. He appreciates middle school students for their honesty and humor.
