COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course integrates critical geography into the practice of family therapy focusing on the impact of space and place; offering "family cartography" as a therapeutic tool. Participants explore 1) privacy, personal space, social interactions, 2) safety in community and social life, 3) relationships between social class and mobility, 4) history of race and segregation, and 5) dynamics of boundaries and resistance.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

1. Gain a better understanding of the impact of space on mental and relational health;
2. Expand their understanding of the dynamics of power and privilege in relationship to quality of space,
3. Have working knowledge of environmental justice in relationship to therapeutic practice, and
4. Explore using at least one practical tool for critically examining the relationship between space, place, and social justice.

ASSIGNMENTS

1) Class Preparation

Participants are expected to complete the assigned readings and to synthesize and apply them in class. Classroom discussions are an opportunity to bring up questions about the assigned readings, deepen one's understanding of the issues under study, and integrate course material with one's own personal and professional experience. (10 points)

2) Family Cartography Map and Paper

Class participants will work in pairs to complete a family of origin cartography. Specific instructions for completing this map will be offered in class. Along with the map itself, participants are to complete a double-spaced, 5 to 8 page paper describing their map, briefly addressing the following questions (80 points, DUE 1/27/18 in class):

- Describe the setting – physical environment, town and neighborhood - in which you grew up.
- What kinds of social interactions were available to you in this setting? Where were you and your family able to go and not go in this setting? How safe did you feel? What level of privacy and personal space did this setting provide?
- How did this setting affect your family life? You as an individual?
- Describe the power dynamics in this setting. Include race, class, gender, sexual orientation, abilities, nation of origin, language and any other signifiers that are relevant.

- How did these power dynamics affect you and your family? In what ways did you and/or your family members participate in the oppression or marginalization of others? How were you and your family oppressed or marginalized?
- Describe the physical environment and climate in the area in which you were raised.
- How did the climate affect your family life? You as an individual?
- Describe the home in which you lived.
- What kinds of social interactions were available to you in and around your home? In what areas of the home did you spend the most time and why? Where were you able to go and not go in your home and why? How safe did you feel in various spaces in your home? What level of privacy and personal space did this setting provide?
- Who was in your family? Who had the most power? How was the power enacted?
- How do these power dynamics reflect the broader power dynamics in your community?
- Describe the climate(s) in your family. Who controlled the climate and how?
- How did this climate affect relationships in the family? How did this climate affect you as an individual?
- What spaces on your map reflect sites of oppression? Describe the relationships in these sites.
- Where are sites of resistance? Describe the relationships in these sites.
- How did you and/or your family resist oppression? Where, what and how did you learn to resist oppression?
- What types of resiliency did you develop as a result of this geography?

3) Sharing Your Map in Class

During the final afternoon of class you will share your map with a small group. Be prepared to describe what you learned and answer questions. (10 points, DUE 1/27/18)
