Instructor Biography: I am a Licensed Professional Counselor and have past experience as a Certified Alcohol and Drug Counselor. I received my Master’s Degree in Agency Counseling at the University of Puget Sound in Tacoma, WA. Upon moving to Portland, I provided group counseling in a corrections facility and local non-profit as a drug and alcohol counselor and mental health counselor serving outpatient and inpatient populations. Currently, I work in private practice with a focus on providing relational counseling that infuses awareness of political struggles into my work with clients. I am also currently engaged in many projects connected to group work and facilitation.

“As therapists, we must move beyond dealing with individual pain; we must become part of a larger solution by joining with others to transform the social conditions that contribute heavily to individual pain. We cannot continue to pathologize individual adaptations to socially destructive patterns. Therapy should not become a part of the problem by suggesting that the pathology is individual and the solution is individual.”

- Judith Jordan

“Recovery can take place only within the context of relationships; it cannot occur in isolation.”

- Judith Herman

Catalog Description: Introduction to the major schools of group therapy and the common factors associated with positive outcomes. Covers group dynamics, obstacles to success in group therapy, and the stages of group process. Role-playing, outside group membership, and demonstrations illustrate principles of effective group leadership.

Prerequisite: CPSY 503 or 569
Credit: 3 semester hours

Course Description and Outcomes: This is a graduate level course designed to provide students with the theories, concepts and experiences that will increase their competency of group counseling with adults. Students will engage in lecture, readings, in-class activities and observation as well as experiential training groups. The content and experiences in this course provide concepts and skills necessary to satisfy the group work competencies stipulated in the Council for Accreditation for Counseling and Related Programs (CACEREP) Standards (2001) as outlined below. Students will gain knowledge of group counseling theory and demonstrate the practical skills necessary for the dynamic application to various adult group counseling settings. Students will understand how to adapt various theories and skills to the unique circumstances they find themselves in as professionals and citizens.

CACREP Curriculum Standards and Course Objectives

Attendance Policy: Students are highly encouraged to make every effort to resolve any attendance conflicts in order to attend all classes and activities. Students can receive an excused absence at the instructor’s discretion. Extraordinary conditions such as illness or family emergencies warrant an excused absence. If a student cannot attend class: (1) contact the instructor prior to the absence to explain the reason for the absence (email if anticipated or phone if last minute) (2) make provisions to obtain class materials and any other information missed (3) make up work may be required. One unexcused absence can lower the student’s final grade; two unexcused absences may result in failure. Three late arrivals are equal to once unexcused absence.

It is essential that everyone is present at all of the sessions as this also impacts group dynamics, group cohesion and our ability to be fully present with each other.

Special Considerations with Course Format: The class will be a platform for demonstrating and examining the group process and experience through didactic and experiential teaching methods. While this is not a therapy group, experiential activities will bring the group process into our awareness. Students are not required to share personal information as part of the classroom dynamics, or as a requirement for any evaluation or for grading purposes. Students are asked to be intentional about what they choose to share with other students in the class during activities. However, by taking this course, you agree to the opportunity to challenge yourself to become familiar with the territory of group work through participation in the activities provided—including the experiential training groups. If you become uncomfortable and feel as though you are unable to continue or participate during any aspect of this course, you may always request the right to pass. If you find yourself repeatedly doing so, please discuss this with me or another trusted colleague. Your participation is vital to your learning.

In the text, Corey, et al. share their perspective on the value of training groups:

“Your ability to function effectively as a group counselor has a lot to do with your beliefs pertaining to groups. If you believe in the therapeutic power and potential of groups, and if you are willing to commit yourself to the disciplined work it takes to learn about groups, you are already taking significant steps toward becoming a competent group leader. If you are suspicious about groups, and if you approach this course with a great deal of hesitation, we challenge you to talk about your reservations and concerns either in the class, if this is appropriate, or with your instructor privately. You will get much more from reading this book and taking a group course or group workshop if you commit yourself to being active, involved, and open to learning about the group process. This is an excellent time to challenge any misconceptions you may have about groups and identify what you need to do to become a productive member of a group. The steps you take now will help you become a vital and creative group leader (p. 21).”
Confidentiality Policy: Confidentiality is extremely important to the integrity of this course. Confidentiality cannot be guaranteed in any situation but we are collectively accountable to maintain a safe, trusting environment throughout the course including the experiential groups, activities and conversations. While it can be compelling to share personal information about group members with others, all students are bound by the ACA ethical code of confidentiality with respect to any material shared by other members of the class. The disclosure of personal information to anyone outside this class would be considered unethical. Please explore any concerns you have about confidentiality during class time, after class or during a training group.

Evaluation: Grades will be based on your effort and ability to explore and apply the group concepts and experiences in this course towards the needs of adults in a group counseling setting. Your ability to use personal reflection, critical thinking and your ability to share the comments, questions and challenges that come out of this reflection and thought are essential in earning a successful grade in this course. Evaluation in this course is not based on the content of your personal experiences, specifically, how “well” you participate in the group as members, but on your participation in the process of learning about group dynamics.

Potential Risks of Engaging in This Course:

- Confidentiality can not be guaranteed by the instructor.
- While not intended to be a therapy group or process, you may stumble upon personal material that may warrant further exploration.
- While your instructor is taking on a dual role of both training and grading your performance in this course, you will not be graded on the content of your participation but on the intention you put forth to understand group process. If you have concerns about this at any point throughout the course, please discuss them with the instructor.
- Please discuss any questions or concerns that come up during the course with the instructor in class time or through a scheduled appointment. Your communication and feedback are important to the integrity of this course.

A. Class participation (40%: 200 pts)

1. This includes participation in class discussions, small group discussions, assigned activities and participation in the experiential training group demos, both as a member and a facilitator. This also includes participation in post-group journaling and debriefing following each experiential training group. Good participation is demonstrated by the following activities:
   - Ask questions/offer perspective/share ideas
   - Participate in all activities to the best of your ability
   - It is expected that your participation will move along a continuum that follows normal group development (you will build on your own process throughout the course)
B. Exam (15%: 75 pts)
   1. A written mid-term exam that will demonstrate relevant concepts and theories of group work covered in the first half of the semester.

C. Written Assignments (25%: 125 pts):
   1. Group Training Commitment and Goals Paper:
      Prior to your group experience, you will write about your goals and intentions as a participant in this course.
   2. Post-Group Training Evaluation and Reflection Paper:
      You will complete a post-group training paper exploring what you learned about group dynamics and group leadership from the perspective of both member and facilitator. Written journal entries following each class will fold into this paper.
   3. Interpersonal Style and Cultural Context Paper:
      You will complete a paper on your interpersonal style and cultural context and how it may impact your experience as a group leader.
   4. Additional short writing assignments:
      Based on supplemental reading materials and articles on reserve

D. Demonstration (20%: 100 pts)
   1. Group facilitation project:
      You will choose a lesson from a curriculum on which you’d like to co-facilitate a group for the class. This will include a written paper, collaboration with your co-facilitator and co-facilitation of a group. Detailed expectations for this assignment will be shared later in the course.
